

ABSTRACT

A backlight assembly includes a frame configured to mount a liquid crystal panel, a light-guide plate and one or more light-emitting devices. The frame includes a plurality of conductive members embedded in the body of the frame and protruding into 5 contact pads for connecting to the light-emitting device. The conductive members externally connect to a power source to supply electrical current to the light-emitting device.